updates on the insane world of money and power

'Honest Money' in World of 'Dishonesty'

This morning, driving to build a pump house, I purposefully hit the button for NPR so as to surveil the enemy. And I was not disappointed. I was treated to 2 women with lilting voices, backed by light jazz, describing the nature of things. Here's how they see it.

The proponents of small government are at it again with their failed message. What these so-called libertarian/conservatives don't understand is that earlier in our history (before we had government in charge), capitalism (unthought-out), wreaked havoc on the nation and the world, causing 'climate change' that everyone now has to pay for.

And, polling shows Europeans to be the happiest people because they trust in their institutions to look out for them, providing them with health care (without health you have nothing). Relying on government, citizens are calmed and anxiety is reduced.

I wonder if these 2 women see the connection in their topics? Big government is the cure for all our ills, and what they lean on for support. Do they see that underlying their dependence on big government is something more fundamental—they are victims.

'Virtue signaling victims' are dangerous, especially when they have an elite power structure behind them. They do not realize that their victimhood is a rationale that makes them the 'enemy' of human nature, dignity, freedom to choose, and 'liberty'.

We find ourselves engaged in a great war 'with an enemy elite and its host of 'victims' for the soul of America. A fight that will mainly take place in the United States because we have the Constitution and Bill of Rights. Which brings a thought: I was considering riding across Canada this summer (where I am a citizen), but, could I find myself arrested, crossing that border, by Trudeau's thugs, for what I write in my articles?

I'll stay on American backroads where a war is being fought over the 17 powers delegated to federal government in the Constitution, and where, other than powers specifically granted, government has no authority to act or delegate others to act in its stead.

Is this a war we can win? I think, so if we remember something once told to me by a Zen Roshi—'whether within or without, when you are tired—your enemy is also tired'. And I think it fair to extrapolate what he said includes—'dishonesty' is the more tiring.

What are the 'dishonest elite' most dishonest about? The antithesis of the ladies' thoughts about the EU. Government in general cares less about us—when compared to their lust for wealth/power. And their desire to profit from our labor for their wealth.

Most threatening to those of us who gain wealth through our labor is an elite disregard for 'sound' honest money'. The Constitution provides for gold/silver coins as money—and nothing else. Other than insuring gold/silver as money, government has no money mandate—rendering a Federal Reserve illegal, as well as a planned CBDC.

Most Americans do not yet understand the function of 'honest money' (gold/silver), and are slow to come to terms with realities of the government's role in stripping us of our greatest freedom—the liberty to control our purchasing power without supervision.

Without control of purchasing power, with 'honest money' in the hands of citizens, there is not liberty. Like those NPR women not recognizing their victimhood, Americans need to connect a US caused war in Ukraine with allowing 7 million illegals into the country (then busing them around), while mandating FDA/CDC 'power/profit' genocide to rule the day. Each done to destroy the republic—so as to hand us over to globalists.

In this debacle, nothing is more threatening than a locked-down CBDC that strips us of our liberty to purchase on our own terms—with control of what we spend and save.

For now, we can forget about a gold standard because there is no one trustworthy to oversee it. Which hopefully brings a barter-economy, wresting control into hands of citizens—where it belongs. When? When hard-earned dollars no longer feed the kids.

Gold/silver are not presently seen as a means of exchange, but, in the end, there is nothing else. Bitcoin, if it is to survive, will function as tech for something real—gold.

What would honest money look like? Because gold and silver are money, without any need to back anything, there is no need for currency. Any gold and silver not being used for exchange, remains vaulted, accessed 'digitally' on a smartphone—requiring older Americans to adapt to tech and the young, to accept the reality of 'honest money'.

No more 'dishonest currency', pumped-out by central governments to purchase gold/silver. Dishonest money disrupts commerce—by taking away purchasing power from those who earned the money with their labor. Money belongs in the hands of citizens.

The elite 'drone on' about the need for CBDC to bring control and stability to everyone and everything—a 'manifest destiny' mandate for control 'they so richly deserve'?

What they actually deserve is to be tried as traitors conducting treason. They are 'the inflators'—the founders saw those committing 'induced inflation'—as 'capital crime'. Off with their heads: 'honest money' is gold/silver—fruits of labor—not to be messed with

Who comprise the dishonest? Remember Saddam's boys? Biden has a boy—and boys will be boys. Imagine the kind of 'fathering' needed to produce a Hunter Biden.

Biden's DOJ is going after a whistleblower who risked coming forward to expose an alleged Biden crime-family. This guy might get 100 years for his trouble while Hunter gets his misdemeanor for purportedly selling his dad's office to China and Ukraine. Doesn't that conjure up Saddam again, looking the other way after the boy's night-out on a rape/murder caper? Or, is rape/murder less a crime than 'selling out' our republic?

The scope of 'the dishonesty' is pervasive/everywhere. This 'misinformation, disinformation' BS—that's for citizens to figure out using their 1st Amendment. For government, with an MO of spewing lies, to step in to silence 'misinformation' for the safety of citizens is plain and simple criminality. But something more ominous comes our way.

In the same way the president blatantly allows his 'department of injustice' to bring down the hammer to avoid having his family brought 'before the bench' under a charge of treason, elites unleash a term they've been readying in the wings: 'malinformation'.

That's my next topic. For now, while there is yet time, silver is cheap, cheap, cheap!
