Joe Biden Dreams of American Glory—And 'Dr. Strangelove'

The Oscars suffered through MC Ricky Gervais telling it like it is, reminding them: "I don't care.". Taking a line from Ricky, we need to call out BS—because 'we don't care.'

The debate today offers up a choice: do we agree with Sen. Graham and retaliate for the downing of an American drone (heading towards Russia with transporters off), by shooting down 1 Russian aircraft or do we agree with Hannity and shoot down 10?

Considering our past 3 presidents, each is in contention for the worst judge of character: taking council from the most inept advisors in human history. But compared with Obama/Trump, Biden is the most erratic, dangerous human being to 'occupy' the White House. Always the consummate blowhard/bully, he now aggrandizes himself as a Roosevelt, finally positioned to reach for glory—on battlefields soaked with American blood.

He can't do it in Ukraine because we would get our asses kicked. But somehow, we can do it with China, a nation far more powerful than Russia? And, talking out of both sides of his mouth, Biden, who has affirmed the 1 China policy, now has loosed his minions to let it be known that the US is willing to go to war with China over Taiwan.

Like Ukraine, a coming war with China will be at the instigation and behest of the US. China had no plans to invade Taiwan, but now, because of an onslaught of US meddling, it's in the air. Soon our kids will be invited to stop 1.5 B Chinese at Taipei.

As my friend Bill Holter said to Greg Hunter, "It's all bullshit." Stupidity abounds, such that Hollywood, instead of giving us films to shape our lives, subjects us to Oscar acceptance speeches that translate to: "I'd like to thank the Academy for giving me this opportunity to drive a wedge between men and women, while stirring racial tensions.

With a core group of democrats (I greatly fear how many they are), 'holding firm' to 'absurdities without limit', they, with Pharma, most of Congress, the Fed, Treasury, Pentagon, and the Administration, now with 'backs to the wall', are floundering.

I often make the comparison between 'strategy' (big picture), and tactics (little picture). Today I heard a military analyst say that on the battlefield, tactics, employed without a strategy, is the noise before defeat. And, the US has no strategy—none at all.

We have no plan because no one advising Biden possesses requisite mental acuity to put together a strategy. Intelligence boss, Avril Haines, testifying before Congress, addresses intelligence 'community' issues, making no case for working together for the good of Americans—or any plan to get agencies out of politics. Instead, she chides personnel ratios, imbalanced in terms of race equity/equality, sex, gender—whatever.

With no desire for peace talks on Ukraine, there is also no effort to conduct national debate on whether or not present policies will destroy the nation, from within and from outside. Except for an ignored Ukraine nuclear war possibility, China is now the focus.

For any not following a US shift Eastward, China, like Russia (unless it accedes to total surrender), can do nothing acceptable to the US. In pursuit of that end, the State Department misrepresents China's actions across the world—or spreads China lies. As in: Belt/Road is being developed to enslave the world. China encroaches on the territory of other nations. China oppresses/subjugates 100s of millions of Chinese. Chinese technology is developed (mainly) to spy. Is this China, maybe? But the US—for certain.

Is China in it for themselves? Naturally, but do they play fair? Does Australia play fair? They have 'the back' of the US in every conflict/war—whether 'good, bad, or ugly'. A sister nation (smaller and less powerful), that always goes along with 'our program'. Now, with China threatening war over US meddling, Australia is 'joined at the hip', to the US, willing to fight to the 'last Aussie' in support of Biden's 'legacy of lunacy'.

Australia is our Germany in the Far East. Both nations are run by 'non cipher' leadership—occupying no seat on the world stage. Just as the Germans allowed their future (NS2), to be blown-up by the US (with hardly a peep), Australia let its contract with France for nuclear submarines be jettisoned by a crude US ploy, taking that contract for itself (because it could), while enlisting Aussie blood/muscle in a fight with China.

Not long ago Australia had good relations with China, but now, like Ukraine, it's been hoodwinked by the US to fight China to the 'bitter end', with Australian youngsters as 'bubblegum under the US heel', scraped-off and slaughtered for Biden's 'path of glory'.

The big push to encircle China (if you can't match them in business, at least destroy them), was pushed 1st with Obama's TPP treaty, then Trump, and now with Biden. It's taken the form of 1 of those 5 letter deals that we didn't need more of: ANZUS—another tactic without a strategy. With no US national discussion as to what ought to be our relationship with China (the economic elephant in the room), the past 3 administrations have 'shot their wad' to encircle China, maintaining they were doing it defensively. Which is true but only if we define the United States as a reserve currency and a dollar.

With 'free speech' either moribund or dead in the US, and a news service that plays 'lapdog' to a tragic but laughable US foreign policy, we push blindly on. On to the front lines 'where all is not quiet', and where a 'coalition of the unwilling' will die—needlessly.

In DC, Roosevelt-Biden, has his sights set on a 2nd, 100 years of China humiliation. But it won't work. Putin/Russia said no. Now Xi/China say no. It ain't gonna happen.

The West responds: when push comes to shove, is that little UK sniveler, Sunak, with an 80K army and no economy—going to overwhelm China and Russia? Maybe Australia alone can take China on? How about the US, commanded by generals with nail polish in skirts? Maybe the woke lands a telling blow on 'destiny of the Far East'?

Few Americans understand it, but many have a sense of how bad things are. So how do we apply the line, "I don't care" into the conversation? By risking. Risking what? What others (in the majority?), think of you. Risking position and employment. Risking our freedom—then our lives. Most all the 'bullshit' is unconstitutional, and the Constitution mandates citizens to enforce US law—that's you and me. This is Vietnam X100. They will demand our kids and it is our duty to 'resist'. And, under God—to stop them.
