They're Not Coming for Your Kids—They're Here

In case you haven't noticed, the sickness out there is deep and spreading. Unlike a virus affecting the body, this disease affects the mind, spreading among us 'in silence'.

The saddest aspect has to do with the non-recognition of just how threatening it is. We can't make it go away by getting out of California/Oregon. This is like the 1950's movie, "The Blob"—'it creeps and crawls'—feeding on anyone it comes in contact with.

The 'trans' thing in California school districts creeps and expands into disciplinary action against kids who won't use other kid's preferred pronouns. This is sick. These are children, without ability to see their sexual futures. Wards of parents—and no one else.

You think you can just move to another state and be free? Have you noticed the 'velocity of spread' for this mind disease? When parents gather at school board meetings to protest (peacefully), opportunity is taken from them by a summonsed, organized 'trans' community, there to yell them down—backed-up by ANTIFA with pepper spray.

Do we move elsewhere to buy a little more time? Maybe, but for how long? While you are wanting to be left alone, minding your own business, the 'sick' are planning how to take your liberty and kids away from you. You disagree with a 'trans agenda', in school, foisted on young kids—they take your kids. Foster parents lose kids for not enforcing a child's preferred pronouns—same for a 'non-complaint' parent in a divorce.

What's the scope of spread? Throughout the body (politic) until every cell is infected. And this 'sick tyranny' spreads rapidly. All it asks is that you 'shut the f... up.' So, you move from state to state, country to country, until there is no place left for you to go?

It's the same with 'red flag' gun laws—once your weapons have been seized without 'due process', good luck getting them back from an 'Obama appointed' judge. And once your kids have been taken from you for 'noncompliance', they likely become perpetual wards of the state. If the state gets its way, the goal is to have you assigned to a 'ward'.

I'm thinking most of us do not see how threatening this is. If you are 'non-compliant' to the elite, consider a future based on 'Minority Report', where present/future children need to be removed from you. If you think I'm over the top—let's check back in a year.

We are far too accommodating to the elite. In conversation when someone utters 'climate change', don't just say you don't accept climate change, or that the founder of Greenpeace has denounced it as a fraud. Contention is the goal of 'identity politics'.

What's needed is good-old tough questions—the kind that get you into 'darker water' with 'ideologues' than simply by taking the opposite position. "What's the evidence for 'climate change?'—not 'your' evidence because truth is not a matter of opinion. "6000 scientists, you say—is science decided by a vote"? Tough questions shine a light on it.

Saving ourselves from a 'blob mob' requires a firm stand. Along the way, we will get some help. I came across a neighbor last night that I hadn't seen in a long time. He told me he's had 'long Covid' (whatever the hell that is), for a couple of years. After a short conversation we agreed on the likelihood that he got sick after 'vaccines and boosters'.

Also, in backlash to the 'creeping blob', Americans are becoming more conservative. When people lose their jobs, their firearms, their kids, their health, and finally their lives are threatened, they begin to wake up. Elites need to be in full control before that.

Going forward we need to reduce things to common denominators and simple terms. No more debate about the 'state' having jurisdiction over our kids, or the state will next assert a 'right' to load us into boxcars for non-compliance—or force us to sew a 'yellow star' on our coat. Females cannot be required to shower or pee with males or be required or compete against them athletically. Only sick minds that think otherwise.

If 'Pride Month' is used to degrade 'free speech', it becomes 'Shame Month'. The Constitution and Bill of Rights (with its subsequent amendments), offers nothing more than a 'fair playing field' for each and every citizen. Any special treatment is bullshit.

We don't ask our questions from a sense of wonder, we ask them to make the elite and their minions accountable. Our questions are purposed to dumbfound ideologues.

Those that would forcibly 'cancel' our 'free speech' through coercion or brute force need to be confronted. If they inflict pain through ignorance, they are utterly stupid. But, if they 'know they don't know' what the hell they're talking about, yet use it to strip our liberty, they are evil. My grandmother had that right: "There is no rest for the wicked".

For a snapshot of how LGBT propaganda is working: 20% of Gen Z kids have doubts about the gender they were born into. That's up from 2%. Human genetic codes (if they change at all), adapt over an epoch—not a decade. Our kids are being forced to doubt their sexuality—and supported to change it without a note from home.

Where can we relocate to assure that our kids are safe? It used to be easy for Americans—Mexico was fairly safe and Canada tended to leave private citizens alone. Those days are gone. A former destination, New Zealand, is now a 'fearsome tyranny', where reporter's articles get re-written, and they are fired for suggesting views outside of the government narrative. If we move offshore—we could live to regret that decision.

Sickness pervades the upper elite. Tedros, the head of the WHO, wants nothing less than total control of the world. Antonio Guterres, UN Secretary General, is 'spokesman of evil' for DAVOS, advocating the internet be put under elite control to stop the spread of misinformation. That 60's slogan: "Get the US out of the UN?" Sorry, we are the UN.

What is elite intent? Our kids will be 'vaccine mandated', travel restricted, and subjected to the elite narrative', at school and across the social spectrum. The films they view will be required to have roles for 'unrepresented' groups (is that white people?). 30% of secondary roles will need to be from 2 unrepresented groups. Art—redefined.

Parents will be disenfranchised at each step along the way. The word that comes to mind to best describe where we are is sinister: that which gives the impression of evil. But the hopeless pale cast over our kid's futures is no longer having to do with an 'impression'. This is complete evil, and our best hope to stop them is our love for our kids.
